WHO WANTS THIS LADY DEAD?

Dr. Suzanne Gudakunst has correctly identified the exact causes of people's obesity, and how to stop it. She's also discovered that the same cause of why people get fat is also the same reason why people eventually get sick and die prematurely – often cutting off years from their lives (not to mention the quality of their lives!)

I was off work for 6 months and I practically lived in doctor's offices. I noticed laptops are common in the exam rooms or nearby. The laptop provides easy accessibility to patient files, easy notes and prescription writing, keeping the information of the visit up to date and accurate. Computers are also used for looking up drug compatibility, side affects, etc. In my case, my doctor used the computer to check on the side affects of a medication.

I didn't want to take the medicine recommended, even though it was the only drug, with proven results, for my condition. I knew of its severe side affects from a family member who had taken it. The doctor felt I was misinformed or it might be a "rare" case. He checked the data base for the side affects, I was concerned about and found they weren't listed. He assured me it would be noted on the site, if there was any possibility of this reaction.

A bit wary, I took the prescription, filled it and took the pills. Guess what happened? So, now there are two "rare" cases with reactions, not documented, on the reference site for physicians.

Who are the keepers and educator of these sites?
Pharmaceutical companies.

These sites are the sources which advise what medications do, what they treat, what to avoid while taking them, and their side affects.

That is a powerful tool and doctors depend on it for accurate information.

Is there any possibility a pharmaceutical company might not have an unbiased opinion about the facts? Would they withhold information so they could sell their products?

The short answer is yes, here is an example. According to the FDA, based upon the data concerning possible heart related problems which were experienced after taking (we will call it) Brand X, it advised patients to consult with their physicians about any heart-related concerns. In 2006 annual report of the pharmaceutical company that produces this drug accounted for approximately $2.4 billion dollars in sales in the United States alone. Based upon the sales volume alone, sales of this medication account for a huge source of profit for this Pharmaceutical giant. In 1999, apparently after a medical researcher attempted to inform the pharmaceutical company about increased heart risks which have recently been disclosed publicly, it's company officers allegedly threatened

litigation and warned him that some executives wanted to hold him accountable for a \$4 billion drop in the company's stock. That is a huge threat!

Should a pharmaceutical company be allowed to threaten to sue a medical researcher who attempts to present safety concerns about a particular product? If you suffer from heart disease or diabetes, would you want to know ALL the ways in which a drug might affect you?

If a doctor cautions the public about harmful side effects from Brand X, and he was threatened by a lawsuit for Billions of dollars, imagine what they would do to a respected, trusted doctor, who provides an alternative to losing fat and getting healthy without drugs?

This will cost them billions!

Dr. Suzanne Gudakunst is the doctor that dares to go against traditional medicine practice and offers the truth, regardless of the consequences.

She may have found the answer everyone has been looking for when it comes to preventing sickness, disease, as well as a permanent end to people becoming fat!

She has identified several species of parasites and a specific type of goopy plaque that if left in your bowels makes you fat, bloated, developing a pouch and spare-tire belly – and which also is directly linked to 99.9% of ALL diseases (including but not limited to: cancers, diabetes, arthritis, heart disease, strokes, high blood pressure, just to name a few!)

But best of all, Dr Suzanne has found an instant and natural remedy that flushes out these plaques and parasites for good. People using her formula often report sudden weight losses up to 100 lbs or more – and without changing a single thing about their diets. Even more shocking is the fact that many people see reversals in heart disease, and suddenly their diabetes or even cancer goes into remission and never returns!
